Monday 9th April 2012

Our voyage to the 'lost' village of Imber! St Giles Church (6) 2cwt - Friday 6th April.

Imber is first mentioned in a charter of 967AD and was always a remote village even before the military began to take occupation of Salisbury Plain at the end of the 19th century. By the 1930s the army had taken possession of the majority of land hereabouts. The urgent need for locations mirroring the villages of Normandy prior to D-Day led to Imber being evacuated for American troops to train for such close-quarter combat conditions. Promises to villagers that they would be able to return to Imber after the war, never materialised, with only a handful of days at Christmas and Easter being set aside for the purpose of religious worship. The church was placed in the hands of the Church Conservation Trust in recent years with the current ring of six bells installed in 2009. Two dozen ringers converged on the excellent Bridge Inn in West Lavington at lunchtime prior to our proceeding in convoy to the church amidst the MOD land that is usually only traversed by tanks or armoured vehicles. A significant proportion of the many non-ringing visitors who had taken the opportunity to enjoy this rare tourist attraction were suitably intrigued by our ringing so as to want to view and photograph our efforts. Everyone agreed that the long journey was worth the effort so as to paraphrase that: "We were there!" Hugh Deam.

Minor & Doubles Training Day at Iffley (6) and Nettlebed (6)

The weather may not have been as sublime as on our Spring Outing two weeks ago, but to compensate there was much tangible progress made by several of our participants, both at the six-bell practice in the morning at Iffley and at the doubles mini-outing at Nettlebed in the afternoon. The name 'Nettlebed' denotes the propensity of nettles here in centuries past, a circumstance which saw linen cloth produced from the thread that they yielded. The Fleming family, including Ian Fleming - the creator of super-spy James Bond, lived in the manor house here, and so we were licensed to trill on the bells of the early Victorian church set at the heart of this Georgian inspired village. Our thanks are due to both towers for the use of their bells. Hugh Deam.
